MRS. KABER GETS LIFE TERM

FOUR YEAR TERMS FOR FIRING ON LIFE BOATS

LEIPZIG, Germany, July 16.—Lieutenant Dittman and Lieutenant Boldt, charged with murder in the first degree for firing on lifeboats after the German hospital ship Llandovery Castle had been torpedoed in the summer of 1918, were each sentenced today to four years' imprisonment.

The sentence did not, however, carry hard labor with it, as demanded by the public prosecutor. The case of Dittman and Boldt differed from the others which had been heard by the supreme court here in connection with trials growing out of violations of the rules of civilized warfare inasmuch as the two lieutenants were brought to trial by the German public prosecutor. Great Britain only had demanded the trial of Commander Patzig of the submarine which torpedoed the Llandovery Castle, who fled the country. The public prosecutor, however, after an examination of the evidence ordered that Dittman and Boldt be placed on trial.

Wind Storm Strikes Paris

PARIS, July 16.—Much damage was done to property when a terrific wind storm struck Paris yesterday. Chimneys were torn from roofs, trees in the Champs Elysee and the Avenue Bois de Boulogne were uprooted, automobiles were overturned and awnings over the boulevard cafes and signs on business houses were demolished. Many persons were injured by falling debris and the limbs of trees.

The storm was at its height just as Ambassador Herriot was taking leave of President Millerand after having presented him credentials. The president bade him remain at the palace until the storm abated.

Rain fell last evening and the heat wave appeared to be broken.

FOUND GUILTY OF FIRST DEGREE MURDER BUT GIVEN MERCY

CLEVELAND, July 16.—Mrs. Eva Kaber was today sentenced to life imprisonment in the Ohio reformatory for women at Marysville by Judge Maurice Bernon, after a jury had found her guilty of first degree murder with a recommendation for clemency on a charge of murdering her husband, Daniel F. Kaber, Lakewood publisher.

Mrs. Kaber, who was lying limp in the arms of a deputy sheriff when the jury made its official report of the verdict, was asked if she had anything to say. She merely shook her head indicating that she had not. Judge Bernon then pronounced the sentence. Mrs. Kaber then was carried back to her cell in the jail.

The jury deliberated in all four hours and took only three ballots. It was said, the first two being nine for mercy and three for first degree murder without mercy. Before halting, the jury discarded the insanity plea. Attorney Paulson said he would not appeal the case, that he was perfectly satisfied with the verdict.

Judge Maurice Bernon announced the decision to Attorney Francis W. Paulson, Mrs. Kabers personal counsel, an hour before the jury reported officially to the court, so that he might inform Mrs. Kaber in hope that she would revive sufficiently from a stupor to be brought in to court to hear the official announcement. She had been in a stupor all morning.

When informed by Mr. Paulson of the verdict, Mrs. Kaber merely nodded her head, he said, showing no signs of emotion. He told her that unless she went to the court room today to receive the verdict and be sentenced, she would have to go Monday, and asked her if she could go. She again nodded her head.

Marian McArdle, Mrs. Kabers daughter, who was with her mother when she was told of the verdict by Attorney Paulson, said she was well pleased with the verdict, according to Mr. Paulson.

Mrs. Kaber was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Ohio reformatory for women at Marysville by Judge Bernon. Under the Ohio law there is no hope for pardon under such a verdict.

Philarete E. Calles, secretary of the interlo, also said the uprising was not serious.

Not to treat the Herrera revolt seriously, asserting there were sufficient forces to suppress and trouble. He asserted the government intended to investigate the situation and determine what influences were behind the revolt and "treat them as circumstances permit."

Philarete E. Calles, secretary of the interlo, also said the uprising was not serious.

JAPAN DOES NOT WANT TO REOPEN QUESTIONS IN FAR EAST WHICH SHE HOLDS CLOSED

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
WASHINGTON, July 16.—Japan's hesitancy to accept unreservedly America's invitation to discuss far eastern problems is thoroughly understood here, though of course, officially nothing is said about it.

Briefly Japan does not wish to reopen questions which she considered closed. Eventually Japan will consent to a discussion of some far eastern questions, but just now she is particularly anxious to know what the scope of the Washington conference will be. It is the usual Japanese caution whenever the Far East is mentioned in a conference of powers. The same wariness was exhibited by the Japanese at the Versailles conference. It is a matter of record that the Japanese were mostly careful not to commit themselves at Paris on anything that seemed to limit Japan's opportunity to dominate the Far East. The Versailles treaty granted to Japan certain privileges in the Pacific which they are unwilling to surrender, and it is well known that Japan has felt sensitive about the criticism in the United States at the provision in the peace treaty which gave China the right to demand the return of the Chinese provinces which were given to Japan.

Twenty Millions Added To Federal Revenues Through False Tax Returns

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Approximately twenty million dollars was added to the government's revenues during the fiscal year just ended through recoveries from false and fraudulent income tax returns. Commissioner Blair announced today.

Indictments have been returned during the year in every section of the country, he said, and many jail sentences have been imposed, ranging from sixty days to a year, in addition to the fines and penalties, which were also assessed.

"Fraud upon the revenue by the way of filing false and fraudulent tax returns appears in many unique ways," Mr. Blair said. "Some taxpayers are extremely crafty in their methods and reduce their taxes by merely omitting large items of income from their returns.

"Manipulations of inventory are not infrequently found, and these can always be checked accurately by the field examiners of the bureau, as no business of any size can keep accurate books and at the same time manipulate inventories. Some taxpayers evidently are of the belief that they can hire unscrupulous accountants who reconstruct their books, and then if the fraud is discovered blame it all on the accountants, to whom they usually pay large fees.

German Destroyer Sent To Bottom By American Battleships

ORFOLK, Va., July 16.—Six former enemy war craft now have found a last resting place on the floor of the Atlantic 75 miles off the Virginia capes. They will be joined next week by the light cruiser Frankfurt and dreadnaught Ostfriesland and the last of the German ships turned over to the United States for experimental purposes.

Destroyers and battleships of the Atlantic fleet sent down yesterday with shell fire two destroyers, the V-43 and S-132, in operations which consumed much of the entire day. Naval and army aircraft will undertake to destroy the Frankfurt Monday and the Ostfriesland Wednesday. Should they fail, destroyers will still the Frankfurt and the Ostfriesland will fall a target to the 14-inch guns of the super-dreadnaught Pennsylvania, flagship of the Atlantic fleet.

While lacking much of the spectacular which marked the destruction of the old destroyers G-102 Monday by army airplanes, yesterday's operations were impressive and were conducted under weather conditions which naval officers said were far from favorable. The heavy seas kicked up by a 25-knot wind pitching and tossing the targets as well as the attacking destroyers.

LIGHTNING KILLS TWO WOMEN

Mrs. Meldick And Miss Cochran Are Victims; Relatives Find Bodies After Long Search

Mrs. Emma Meldick, aged 33, wife of John Meldick, a well known resident of Mabees Corner, Jackson county and Miss Margaret Cochran aged 17, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cochran also reside at Mabees Corner, were instantly killed Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock when struck by a bolt of lightning. They had sought shelter in the old Sadler property near Mabees Corner when that section was swept by a terrific rain and electrical storm and were struck by lightning. The bolt struck Mrs. Meldick squarely in the face, which was badly burned. It then set fire to her clothes, which were burned off her body. Miss Cochran's clothes did not catch fire. The two women were standing along the west side of the Sadler property when stricken. This landmark has not been occupied for 20 years.

The two women had been picking black berries and were on their way home when caught in the storm. They managed to reach the Sadler property when the storm was raging at its height.

Bodies Found Alongside Of House

When Mrs. Meldick and Miss Cochran did not return home at 5 o'clock and realizing that a severe storm had swept that section Mr. Meldick his father, Philip Meldick, who is well known here and Mr. Cochran started out to hunt for the missing women.

Coroner Called; Renders Verdict

An investigation showed that the house had been struck by lightning in three places and it was virtually wiped out. A report quickly spread through that section that the two women had been killed by lightning and neighbors for miles around hurried to the scene as the Meldicks and Cochrans are among the best known people in Jackson county.

Soles and Heels Ripped Off Shoes

When the bodies were discovered the women's feet were together, which is evident that they were struck by the same bolt. The soles and heels of their shoes were ripped off. Near the bodies were found the buckets of berries the two women had picked before the storm came up.

Arrange Funerals For Victims

Miss Cochran is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cochran and one sister and eight brothers. The funeral services of Mrs. Meldick will be held at one o'clock Sunday afternoon. The body will be taken to Jackson for burial. The funeral of Miss Cochran will be held Monday afternoon from the Hamilton church.

After hearing additional evidence in the case of Nathan Mack, negro, charged with cutting with intent to kill Walter Carter, Judge Sprague in Municipal court Saturday dismissed the accused.

Mack admitted the cutting but claimed that he acted in his proper self-defense after he had been knocked down with out warning by Carter. His story was fully supported in every detail by the testimony of Bess Hurd, colored, who was an eye witness to the trouble.

Carter is the negro who attempted to rob the Goodpasture grocery the other day and Friday was adjudged insane in probate court.

Negro Uses Gun In Effort To Collect Money; One Wounded

George Johnson, 23, married, negro, 1143 Findlay street, was shot in the left lower jaw about two o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Al Maier coal and ice yard on Twelfth street and the railroad, the gun user being Walter Parks, 25, negro, of 1123 Thirteenth street.

Johnson was rushed to Hempstead hospital where he was attended by Dr. Albert Bernitt who will have an X-ray taken to determine the location of the bullet which was from a .32 calibre revolver.

The wound is not considered a serious one.

Johnson had to be carried into the hospital as he collapsed from fright when Parks fired at him.

Parks claims that Parks demanded money from him for work he had done recently but Johnson told him that he did not have the money then to pay him but asked him to wait until this evening when he received his pay from Mr. Maier.

Johnson says that Parks said he would collect right away and started shooting.

Parks, after seeing Johnson fall, ran from the coal yard and disappeared in an alley in the vicinity of his home.

Parks Returns To Scene Of Shooting

Later Parks came out into the street and passed near the crowd of men and women who had gathered to talk about the shooting. He did not appear the least concerned over the shooting. When some one pointed him out as the man who had the gun, he was trailed until the officers arrived and placed him under arrest. Parks was taken to police headquarters where he told his story of the shooting.

Parks Tells His Story

He says that he worked at the old brewery for Johnson who was in the employ of Mr. Maier. Parks claims Johnson owes him $5 for the work and has repeatedly refused to pay him, although he was paid for the work by Mr. Maier. Parks told the police: "I just fired to prove that I was not joking about collecting my money." Parks says he fired four times and that he threw the gun away while he was running to his home.

Nichols Had Finger Buried

Ray Nichols, who also works in the coal yard for Maier had a finger buried by one of the shots fired by Parks as Johnson was trying to hide behind Nichols. Johnson darted around behind coal wagons and trucks to keep away from Parks.

A big crowd soon gathered at the coal yard and in the railroad cut following the firing of the shots.

Parks is held at the police station on a formal charge of shooting with intent to kill. The charge may be changed when it is definitely learned how seriously Johnson is wounded.

Redinger participated in a game of ball at the ball grounds at Rose Mount Thursday afternoon and left the money in his trousers pocket in an automobile. When the game was over Higgins missed his money and an investigation disclosed that the Redinger youth had been seen about the machine but on being questioned denied taking the money. Soon after being taken into custody the lad confessed to the theft, according to the officers, and all the cash was recovered.

The boy is being held for the juvenile court and his case will be heard Tuesday.

Walter O. "Druck" Dougherty of near Friendship, Harry Redden of Front street and Edith Elwood, 13, and her sister, Mary Elwood, 23, girl, their address as 1201 Union street, were injured and had a narrow escape from plunging into the Scioto river about 11 o'clock Friday night, when Dougherty's Chevrolet touring car skidded into the wet paving of the bridge and crashed into one of the steel supports of the bridge. This did not halt the car, which kept going until it hit the strongly built fence.

At the hospital the girls claimed they were not thrown out, but received their injuries in the machine. Edith Elwood suffered numerous cuts on her shoulder and back from glass from the windshield, as she was riding in the front seat. Her right knee and left arm and side were bruised and sprained. COURT HOUSE

Wife Sues For Divorce

Amelia Pfau, 1811 Eleventh street, charges habitual drunkenness and cruelty in her suit for divorce and alimony instituted in Common Pleas court Saturday against Jacob Pfau, well known bakery owner at 1800 Eleventh street.

In her petition filed through Attorneys Blair and Blair the plaintiff says they were married August 10, 1899, and then complains that in disregard of his marital duties complains that Pfau has been in the habit of frequently becoming intoxicated during the last 14 years and when under the influence of liquor, she says, he has cursed and abused her, called her vulgar names, assaulted her, ridiculed and mocked her religious belief and practices, accused her of being hypocritical in her religious worship and activities, locked her in a room and threatened to kill her and her son if she attempted to leave the house and has kept up such systematic course of nagging and unbecomingly conduct towards her that she has become sick and nervous, she claims, and declares she cannot safely live with him longer as his wife. Furthermore, she asserts, that on two former occasions, in February, 1917, and January, 1920, the defendant's conduct became so intolerable that she was compelled to seek relief in court but that the suits were withdrawn on his promises to do better. She now not only says that he has kept his promises but complains that his conduct towards her has gradually grown worse from time to time. She says that the defendant is the owner of 17 tracts of real estate in this city and county besides a completely equipped bakery and a Buick automobile and she asks for an allowance as attorney for his property.

Makes Plea For 2.75 Barley Malt Made Beer

WASHINGTON, July 16.—A plea of 2.75 barley malt made beer was made before the joint congressional commission of agriculture today by C. A. Jones, representing Minnesota grain dealers, and Charles Koenig, representing a Minnesota farmer elevators' association.

Mr. Jones estimated that malt beer legislation would mean an addition of three hundred million dollars a year to northeastern farmers, and suggested a testing system under the department of agriculture to establish that 2.75 beer was non-intoxicating.

Mr. Koenig, who comes from the disaffected Representative Volstead, author of the prohibition enforcement law, said he wanted barley beer legalized as it could be demonstrated to be non-intoxicating.

"I believe in having laws which the people will obey and then enforcing them," he said.

"I believe that what we advocate is the salvation, not only of the barley crop, but of the whole cereal industry," Mr. Jones declared. "You will be surprised at the present attitude of the country on this question."

Witness Tells of Bank Wrecking

The Chillicothe Gazette has the following regarding the wrecking of the Bank of Beaver:

The curtain was lifted and those who were present, late Thursday afternoon, at the hearing before Referee Robert W. Manly, of the bankruptcy case of the Russell Brothers, of Beaver, were given an opportunity to look behind the scenes and see the inside operations and long concealed purposes of some of the schemes for using the funds and the credit of the bank of Beaver in promoting various outside ventures in which the Russell brothers and their friends and associates were interested.

From the beginning of the hearing there had been much mystery surrounding certain of these schemes, especially as to the relations of the Russell with certain other men associated with them in these deals and whose names so frequently appeared on notes and checks and certificates of deposit. Some of this mystery was cleared up, late Thursday, under persistent probing by Attorneys Wilby G. Hyde and Lyle S. Evans, by Col. Frank Hunter, of the state banking department, and by Referee Manly. In addition some entirely new light was shed on the mutual operations of Waldo W. Russell and W. A. Eichelberger, of Portsmouth, and under severe examination by Attorney Evans, representing Eichelberger, Waldo W. Russell, who, by the way, was the sole witness on the stand during the day, made some startling admissions as to himself signing the name of Eichelberger to certain blank notes and checks.

The details of all these affairs are here given as shown by the testimony which speaks for itself.

Those Craig and Ferguson Deals

Attorney Hyde, examining Waldo W. Russell, regarding the operations by E. H. Craig, of Columbus, in the trading of 7 per cent notes for 3 per cent certificates of deposit about the Beaver bank, the backing about of these certificates at a big discount, the crediting of the purchase money on his notes at the bank and leaving himself liable at the bank for the difference, brought out the statement from the witness that his brother, John Russell and Craig were in the real estate business together at 8 East Broad street, Columbus, the real estate, operated in being largely in North Carolina and known as the "Providence farms."

Hyde: "How was Craig compensated for the difference between his 7 percent notes and his 3 percent certificates sold at a discount?"

Russell: "I don't think he was compensated. Craig and my brother John expected to make enough money out of the Providence farms to pay all indebtedness."

Hyde: "Then this money Craig got by the sale of certificates of deposit

(of the Beaver bank) several thousand dollars' worth being sold among the Amish people, went to pay for the promotion of the Providence farms?"

A: "Yes."

Q: "How did the Providence farms benefit by the sale of these certificates of deposit?"

A: "Well, the sales enabled the bank (of Beaver) to create reserves so that it could loan money to the Providence farms."

Q: "Then Craig really acted as an agent of the bank to secure money for the Providence farms?"

(No answer.)

Similar Deal With Ferguson

Q: "You used Ferguson (W. M. Ferguson, of Columbus) in the same way?"

A: "Yes, my brother John and Ferguson were together in the Lafayette (Ind.) Sand and Gravel company and also together in the Columbus Park amusement company."

Q: "Did the money secured by Ferguson go to the Providence farms?"

A: "No. The Lafayette Sand and Gravel company and to the Park amusement company."

Q: "The Bank of Beaver, then, took the notes of the sand and gravel and the amusement company?"

A: "Yes."

Q: "Any other agents like that?"

A: "No."

Q: "You know those firms were hard up?"

A: "Yes, but I had faith in the individuals."

Q: "What was the basis of your faith in Craig?"

A: "I depended on my brother, who vouched for him."

Q: "Did you know Craig was driving about in a chattel mortgage?"

A: "No."

Q: "What was the basis of your faith in Ferguson?"

A: "I was told by a responsible party that he was a 'fine fellow'."

Russell Signs Eichelberger's Notes

Attorney Evans: "Didn't you sign the names of Eichelberger (W. A. Eichelberger, of Portsmouth) and his wife to the bank of Beaver and then put your initials on the notes?"

Waldo W. Russell: "Yes."

Evans: "How many?"

Russell: "I don't know."

Q: "How much does Eichelberger owe the bank?"

Q: "How much on notes?"

A: "About $40,000."

Q: "All of it?"

A: "Did you have any authority to sign those names?"

A: "No."

Q: "He (Eichelberger) sent you blank notes?"

A: "Yes."

Q: "Did you notify him when you signed his notes?"

A: "No."

Col. Hunter: "Why did Eichelberger give you blank notes?"

Russell: "It was the bank's practice."

Hunter: "What was the survey for?"

Russell: "It was for necessary expenses."

Q: "What determined the amount?"

A: "We did."

Q: "Place of checks?"

A: "Frequently to cover Eichelberger's over-checks."

Q: "That was the reason for those blank notes, to fill in if Eichelberger overdraw?"

A: "Yes. He was our customer. We finally didn't regard it as wise to refuse to take care of any of his checks."

Q: "That is, he got in on you so deep that you had to take care of his overdrafts?"

A: "Yes."

Q: "Did Eichelberger ever object to your signing his notes?"

A: "No."

Q: "He knew you were signing his name?"

A: "I presume he did."

Q: "When the bank of Beaver closed, were any of Eichelberger's checks returned for 'insufficient funds,' checks on Portsmouth bank?"

A: "Yes."

Tells About Farm Deal

The Chillicothe News-Advertiser had the following:

Evidence of how the Bank of Beaver made a $12,000 farm look like a $50,000 one was the principal "bit" of interest in the last hours of the most recent examination of Waldo W. Russell, cashier of the bank before Referee Robert W. Manly, Thursday afternoon.

Russell Brothers, garage owners, and leaders of the Bank of Beaver, filed bankrupt petitions in May after the bank had gone to the wall in March.

The manipulation in question concerned the sale of the so-called Slavin farm, belonging to W. A. Eichelberger, of Portsmouth, to a Columbus man named Craig. A Columbus firm had a first mortgage of $11,000 on the farm. Craig gave a second mortgage of $25,000 and $14,000 in notes to the bank, making the farm worth about $50,000 on paper. A deed was recorded, but it is alleged that Eichelberger still actually ran the farm and owned it.

Bank examiners were told that the farm had sold for $50,000 and the two mortgages seemed to be pretty good under these circumstances. The $11,000 in notes were represented to be good and helped to bolster up the bank's finances. Later these notes were turned back to Eichelberger, who destroyed them it is alleged.

Other equally shady transactions to keep a sinking ship afloat were brought out. Attorney Wilby G. Hyde representing the trustees of the creditors, cross-examined Waldo Russell with regard to the sale of certificates of deposit among Amish colonies over the country. It was said that Craig, John Russell, and others disposed of these certificates and that the money secured was then loaned to these individuals by the Bank of Beaver, though some of the concerns which they represented were almost insolvent. Some turned out to be actually insolvent later. It appeared to be a case of "I'll do this for you if you'll do this for me."

Lyle S. Evans for Eichelberger, and Col. Frank Hunter of the state banking department, also examined Russell.

An inventory of Russell Brothers property shows assets of $13,000 and liabilities now in the neighborhood of $65,000 and rapidly increasing. The next hearing will be held on July 29. Russell will bring pass books and garage firm records.

Tells About Accident

J. J. Hill, who was with Walter Beckman when their machine struck K. G. Payne's car on Robinson avenue Thursday night says they were not speeding as stated by Payne and that the three women and a baby they had in the back seat of their machine were picked up on the Scioto Trail and were being taken to their homes.

"I was driving the machine and was not going faster than 20 miles an hour" Hill said Saturday.

"Beckman and I had enjoyed a swim in the Scioto near Lucasville and were coming home when we stopped the car and asked the three women if they wished to ride home and they climbed in our car."

Whipping Post Revived

The whipping post as a corrective measure was brought into play at the home of W. H. Kinney, a well known farmer, who lives at Arabia, Lawrence county. His son, Lawrence Kinney, aged 15 was apprehended yesterday by Deputy Game Warden F. D. Voorhes of this city and was charged with shooting squirrels out of season. Mr. Voorhes told the boy's father if he would give him a good whipping he would not file any charges. Mr. Kinney readily agreed to this and taking his son to the barn he gave him a good whipping with a buggy whip Mr. Voorhes said Saturday.

Music an Aid to Surgery.

A Chicago surgeon finds that music in the operating room is of great assistance in putting nervous patients into a calm, peaceful frame of mind before going under the knife. While a patient's favorite song is being played or sung, he or she will, this surgeon says, drift much more readily under the influence of the anesthetic.

"PHANTOM RAIDER" RAMS FREIGHTER, DISAPPEARS

All that remains of captain's quarters on S. S. Fort Morgan.

The S. S. Fort Morgan, traveling along at a tramp rate past Cape Hatteras, was rammed by a mysterious large schooner that was cruising along with all lights out. Nothing was known of the approaching vessel until a giant bow sprit stabbed through the officer's quarters, ripped away the bridge and wrecked the main abul. The freighter was spun about and laid over on her beam ends. Her electricity was cut off. The ship made New York however.

Miss Dolly Wise

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Dolly—Which is the most suitable for a girl of eight years, an organdy or a voile dress?
GREENIE.

Organdy is in greater favor than voile.

Dear Dolly—I have been married four years and I love my husband dearly, but sometimes I wonder how much he cares for me. He has always taken me places but when we go he says unkind things that hurt my feelings. For instance, we went to dinner at the home of one of my friends. She is a young woman who is very particular about everything she does. My husband seemed to realize that I would bother me and so he said that I would not like to go to such a place. I was quite hurt, but I do not think it is a thing to talk about when out in company. What can I do to make my husband more considerate of me? I have cried myself to sleep many times because of some little thing which my husband has done to hurt me deeply.
TROUBLED.

You are placing too much importance on little things that do not count. Your husband seems to be a person who cannot resist the opportunity to be a bit of a tyrant. Many people are that way; they do not mean to be unkind and cannot realize how deeply the other person suffers. You should not have been ashamed to use an old-fashioned lunch set. You had a very good reason to do so. It is very wise to conserve your strength and time. If you try you can be very simple in your mode of living, but at the same time retain a pleasant air about you. In case your husband objects to the old-fashioned lunch set, you should be more conventional and put yourself out in such a small way in order to please him. Pass over the remarks your husband makes. If you take them in the playful spirit in which they are meant, you will save yourself many tears and will be much happier.

Dear Dolly—This is my first time to come to you for advice but I know I can get it from you. Please tell me what in a double ring ceremony, buys the groom's wedding ring, the bride or groom, himself? Please answer at once.
IGNORANT.

The bride should purchase the ring.

Dear Miss Wise—As I see where you help so many others I thought maybe you could help me a little. I am a widow with a baby and have to work for my living. Would like to get a position as housekeeper for some nice respectable widower or bachelor. I wouldn't mind if there is one or two little children if they are nice and of a good nature. I wouldn't mind the country if it is a nice neighborhood and location. If there is any one interested in this they can get in touch with you, leave their name and address with you, then I can get in touch with them.

A DAILY READER.

Dear Dolly—My mother has an awful breaking out in her head. It is bringing her hair out so bad she scarcely has any at all. She says it almost chokes her to death, so if you could give us any information what to do it would be appreciated and also what is good to clean kid slippers? I got a little spot of stain on one side, what could I get to take the stain off?
DOTTY.

Your mother should consult a physician about the best procedure as to treating her scalp. It is too serious a matter to leave to an amateur. For cleaning the kid shoes, rubbing on with a clean linen cloth.

Dear Miss Wise—I am a girl eighteen years of age and I have been keeping company with a boy twenty-one. He is a nice young man, but because his parents have a bad name people have given him a bad name also. Do you think it proper for me to keep company with this young man?
BLONDE.

If the young man is simply suffering a bad name because his parents are not respected, I think it is time that some one stood by him and faced the wicked prejudice of public opinion. In order to do this you should have the sympathy and co-operation of your parents. If people see that they respect the young man and open their house to him, they will begin to get a new viewpoint and will realize that perhaps they have misjudged him. Do not, however, foolishly sacrifice your own reputation of you know in your heart that the young man is unworthy.

Hopeful—I think there is no set definition for "love," but it must be a feeling unmistakable when it comes. If she loved you, she would want to be with you and would be interested in anything concerning you. Maybe she is too modest and reticent to let you see how she feels. To buy her an engagement ring would not make her love you. Be attentive, try to please her, be thoughtful about little things.

YOUNG GIRL FINDS RELIEF

Wants to Tell Other Girls All About It

Evansville, Ind.—"I am eighteen years old and have been bothered for several months with irregular periods. Every month my back would ache and I would have a cold and felt drowsy and sleepy. I worked in a millinery shop and I went to work every day, but felt stupid and would have such cramps. I had seen Lydia E. I have told many girls about it and would be glad to help anyone who is troubled with similar ailments."—STELLA LINXWILER, 6 Second St., Evansville, Ind.

A WIFE IN THE MAKING

GOSSIP RUNS RAMPANT
By degrees Cherry managed to excuse herself from the several of the least interesting of the Wellsburg clubs to which she had been elected with such gusto several months before. She found that her mind refused somehow or other to keep up with the intricacies of the Ladies' Literary Circle, or to expand with the brilliancy demanded of it by the laws and usages of the "Housewife's Own." A select, oh, most select circle of sixteen that met twice a month to further the efficiency of the house, she remained true to the tennis club, however, and met once or twice a week the select of Wellsburg's younger set in a game of tennis or two.

The girls seemed to find Cherry rather dull. That is to say, she was not interested in the sort of things that for generations young ladies of Wellsburg had been trained to be interested in, and that made it difficult for them to quite place her.

Then, too, this independent streak in her was most unsettling. It was unheard of for a newly-wed wife to up and start out in business despite the advice of friends and family. No, they were not at all sure of this new entity in their midst. And so many of the younger men had been influenced by Cherry, her hats and her modern ideas. It really looked as though the nicest boys, the eligibles of the town, might very easily become corrupted by her. There were several of them who stoutly took sides with Cherry against the whole, misunderstanding world. They openly praised her for her nerve and good sense in what she had chosen and loudly hoped that the Lord would send them such a fifty-fifty wife later on. Such sentiments from nicely brought-up Wellsburg youth was nothing short of treason. And for all this revolution, one Mrs. Cherry Ball had been responsible. Small wonder that the tennis club secretly longed to have the young person's resignation sent in.

Some, there were, of the crowd who felt for Ned. They pitied him and his lot from the bottom of their hearts and were loud in their praise of him and his nobility in allowing Cherry to ride as high handedly as he had. Others, again, made bitter remarks about Edward's attentions in another direction. To this the antiist retorted that "it was just what might be expected from a man under the circumstances. And Cherry had but herself to thank if he roared."

And in this manner life dawdled by, life, made up of laughter and tears and heartaches, for one small bride, and perplexities and temptations for one new husband.

Mr. and Mrs. John Brunny and the latter's father, D. E. Thomas, of Fourth street, and Miss Martha Morgan of Glover street went to Oak Hill today to spend the week-end with Mrs. D. E. Thomas and granddaughter, Jane Ann Brunny, who have been spending the past week with relatives there.

SEVERE RAINSTORM SWEEPS THE CITY
MANY STREETS, CELLARS, FLOODED

When 2.65 inches of rainfall fell in the city Friday afternoon, within a few hours many sewers were unable to carry off the huge volume of water and many street corners were flooded, water backing up over the sidewalks and into the cellars of many homes. The storm was one of the worst that has visited this section in weeks. So extensive was the flooded sewer conditions over the city that more than 200 complaints poured into the office of Service Director William Gergens a short time after the storm.

Eighteenth and Walker streets, Fourth and Offshore, Fourth and Bond, Third street below Chillicothe, Twelfth street near Franklin and Hutchins, Sixth and Offshore, Eighth and Prospect were some of the sections flooded. On Third west of Chillicothe, several cellars had several feet of water in them and occupants of the homes had to remove fruit to places of safety.

At Fourth and Bond the water backed only a few inches of running into the front door of the Abe Mayer home. The water was deep enough at Sixth and Offshore streets to halt street car traffic for a short while. Gallia and Mulbert Road was also flooded, this intersection being flooded with every hard rain. The water comes down Mulbert Road and rushes across Gallia street pouring into the cellars of homes on the south side of Gallia. Considerable mud was carried down Mulbert Road by the water and this is left over an inch deep on the street and sidewalks.

During the rain storm Friday afternoon the basement of the Turkey building was flooded, resulting in an estimated damage of $1,000 to the stock of wall-paper belonging to the W. W. Kelly company bookstore. The loss would have been even greater but for the timely discovery of the water pouring into the basement by Edward Loch, a clerk, and much of the stock was removed to a place of safety.

A plumber who was called when the influx continued after the water supply of the store had been cut off, declared that the cause of the trouble was either a broken sewer main or surface seepage resulting from clogged mains.

IRONTON IN DARKNESS

And now poor old Ironton is in darkness, these warm sultry nights. The Irontonian this morning said: "Ironton was without street illumination last night, the Ironton Electric Company having carried out its intention to cut them off unless the city made some provision for the payment of lighting bills."

"Manager Thuma of the company, stated last night that the city had been given ample notice that unless provision was made for the payment of the accumulated bills, the lights would be turned off on July 13th. Two days grace had been given, he said, and no satisfaction could be secured from the city authorities, hence the decision to cut off the street are circuit."

Ironton's light bill, which remains unpaid, amounts to $22,000.

"Let your torch lights burn! There are enough of them in some sections of the city to make reasonably good illumination along the streets and in an emergency such as we are now facing, such a course would not only be a measure of safety for the home, but would be a great boon to the wayfarer."

"This is the first time in the history of Ironton that we have been without light through non-payment of the lighting bills and it may be that it will prove a blessing in disguise. If the streets remain dark for a few nights perhaps the electorate will have a chance to sit at home and ruminate on the splendid accomplishments of the city administration. And again, it may open the eyes of the fellows who 'do things' and they will not be so frequent with promises of a municipal millennium as they were about eighteen months ago."

"Bonded to the limit, sinking fund riddled with judgments, no money to pay police, firemen, garbage men or street cleaners, August settlement long since anticipated, water works expenses whirling out by an eyelash, emergency bonds partially issued and funds exhausted, lights turned off, the policeman's spotlight the only gleam of hope against the blackjack of the thug-Ironton surely is facing a financial problem. But sit tight, fellow citizens. Be of good cheer. Just remember that the administration is saving you a lot of lighting bills and that at last it has something to which it may point with pride."

"We're living in the age of miracles we feel very certain that our eminent chief executive could emulate the example of Joshua with the sun and make the moon stand still. But, doggone it, there isn't the slightest chance of anchoring Luna in one spot and we must pin our hopes on the idea that the city treasury can produce enough to supply batteries for the flashlights of the police force and that the mayor will summon the city council in extraordinary session to adopt an ordinance requiring pedestrians to show red and green lights on starboard and port bows after sundown or revise traffic rules to apply to sidewalk travel."

Anti-Beer Bill Promises
To Stir Up Bitter
Struggle In The Senate

WASHINGTON, July 16—Another spirited struggle is promised in the senate next week as the result of an effort late yesterday to take up the Willis-Campbell anti-beer bill, following recommendation of the soldiers' bonus measure. The senate adjourned yesterday until next Monday without debating or acting on the beer bill motion, offered by Senator Sterling, Republican, South Dakota, but there were promises of opposition Monday. Laying aside of the bonus measure has left the whole future program of the senate in doubt and the Republican steering committee as a result is planning a meeting early next week, in the hope of working out a program for disposal of the beer bill, the Norris agricultural export finance and other agricultural relief measures. Passage of the Sweet bill for consolidation of soldier relief agencies and the administration bill for refunding the allied debts will also be considered.

With these measures completed, senators hope that late this month, after reference of the house tariff bill to the finance committee, a series of recesses may be arranged to afford some rest during August while committee work proceeds on the tariff bill.

In connection with the proposal to give the anti-beer bill right of way, advocates of farm relief legislation promised to press their measures next week and possibly place them ahead of the beer bill.

FIRE DEMONSTRATION MONDAY

The Firearm Co., of Columbus will hold fire tests of different types of fire extinguishers, under the supervision of Fire Chief Robert Leedom, at the Industrial Ball Park, Sixteenth and Findlay streets, July 18th at 2:30 p. m.

Large fires will be built of every kind of hazard then extinguished with the fire extinguishers, particularly adaptable to the different fires.

The use and efficiency of all machines will be explained throughout the tests, and superiority of one kind of extinguisher over the other for certain kinds of fires will be shown.

This should be of particular interest to industrial managers, industrial fire chiefs, garage owners, etc., and those interested in making Portsmouth a safer place to live. All persons interested in better fire prevention are cordially invited to attend.

Matthews Car Skids On Gallia Street; Wheel Smashed

The rear left wheel on a Stearns-Knight touring car owned by George Matthews was broken down last night about seven o'clock when the machine skidded on Gallia street just east of Mulbert Road and crashed into the bank in front of the Garfield school.

In the machine were Misses Helen and Lillian Matthews, daughters of Representative George Matthews, and Miss Gertrude Matthews of Jackson sister of Mrs. Matthews who was being brought here for a visit. Mr. Matthews was in another car behind the one occupied by his daughters, he having gone to New Boston to meet them. The machine was going slowly but when it struck the mud washed from Mulbert Road by the rain it turned clear around and went into jumping the curb and crossing the cement sidewalk. The young women were not injured.

Next Irish Conference
To Be Held Monday; Three
Cornered Parley Concluded

LONDON, July 16—Resumption of the conference between Prime Minister Lloyd George and Eamon DeValera, Irish Republican leader, was not planned for today, it having been announced that their next meeting would occur on Monday. Discussions they would have with their advisers during the day, however, might it was believed, have an important bearing on the future progress of the conversations begun on Thursday and continued yesterday.

It would appear that the discussions between Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. DeValera have developed the subject of a future tripartite conference between the Irish republicans, representatives of DeValera and the British government sufficiently for the prime minister to lay before Sir James Craig, premier of Ulster, definite propositions. Sir James was closeted with Mr. Lloyd George yesterday after Mr. DeValera had left Downing street and it became known later that several members of the Ulster cabinet had been called to London. Belief was expressed in responsible quarters that Sir James wished to consult his colleagues before committing himself as to certain phases of the situation that have developed as a result of Mr. DeValera's visit to London.

There was no suggestion that the brevity of yesterday's conversation between the prime minister and Mr. DeValera indicated they had reached a deadlock, nor was the postponement of the conference until Monday looked upon as significant of danger to the future of the negotiations. In fact, there seemed last night to be a relaxation of the tension which prevailed on Thursday and Friday, and the impression learned was that, while the situation had lost none of its delicacy, some progress had been made.

A statement issued at Mr. DeValera's headquarters during the evening appeared to reflect the determination of the Irish republicans not to meet Sir James Craig, at least for the time being. It was indicated he had forfeited his right to enter the conference by refusing to meet the Irish republicans at Dublin, although south Irish Unionists had availed themselves of the chance to talk over matters with the republicans.

Hides Are Removed From Free List

WASHINGTON, July 16—Action on the first contested section of the Fordney tariff bill having resulted in the removal of hides from the free list and the imposition of a fifteen percent ad valorem duty, the house was ready to take up an amendment for elimination of the dye control and emigration provisions of the bill. The dye control schedule is the second on the list of five open to amendment from the floor under the special rule under which the bill is being considered, the others being cotton, oil and asphalt.

Many breaks from straight party lines marked the vote in the house yesterday, 152 to 97, to remove hides from the free list, eight Republican members of the ways and means committee, which framed the bill, being recorded on the losing side, while Representative Garner, of Texas, ranking Democrat on the committee, and leading the fight against the bill, joined with Republicans voting for the tariff.

Following the vote, taken after four hours' debate, the house practically closed the hope of Democrats for a chance to vote on amendments generally by forcing adjournment over the Democratic demand that the bill be read for that purpose. While another vote on the hides amendment will be demanded when a final vote is taken on the bill Thursday, action yesterday having been in committee of the whole, opponents said there was little hope of defeating it then.

Often the tiles in a hearth become so stained that water will not clean them. Try rubbing them with a piece of flannel soaked in turpentine, then polish with a dry cloth. The tiles will soon look fresh and new.

Legion To Continue
Fight For Soldier Bonus

CHICAGO, July 16—The fight of the American Legion for the soldier's bonus will be continued with renewed vigor, declared Major John G. Emery, of Grand Rapids, Michigan, national commander of the legion, in comment today on the side tracking of the bonus bill in the senate.

"We consider President Harding all wrong in his attitude," he said. "Why, the senate finance committee in its report declared untrue the claims that the Sweet bill and the adjusted compensation program would bankrupt the treasury."

Major Emery asserted that the legion has a well defined program to fight for the bonus and this will not be modified.

"There was at first considerable opposition in the legion itself to this program; but this has now subsided," he said. "Wherever it existed it was on the part of men who were well of financially. We have now induced these men to devote their shares in the compensation to the men who need it. There are now several millionaires among the strongest supporters of the program has."

"The wounded and disabled men will be taken care of first and then will come those in financial straits, due to the war," Major Emery said. "The country as a whole is with us in this," he stated. "Only Washington, the banks and the associations of commerce are against our program."

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, July 16.—Trading was almost at a standstill at the opening of today's stock market. The attendance of members on the floor of exchange was unusually small. Steels, equipments and some of the foreign oils, also specialties, such as various players and International Paper made fractional declines.

UNUSUAL CONDITION
Texas Lady Suffered With Polling and Aching Pains in Her Back, Which Cardui Relieved.
Houston, Texas.—Mrs. C. D. Cook, of 1312 Whitty Street, this city, recently said: "About four months after my marriage, I began suffering much pain, and knew that my condition was unusual, but couldn't just decide what was wrong. I had to go to bed. . . . 'All across my back and hips were pains, pulling and aching until I could hardly sit up. I stayed in bed a few days. My husband had heard of Cardui. . . . so I told him he might get it. 'After I had taken Cardui a few days, I was up. I took five bottles and haven't been in bed since for this trouble, for if I have the least symptoms of this trouble I get Cardui and take it in time. 'I have a number of friends who are similar to that related by thousands of other women. Cardui is purely vegetable, and mild and gentle in its action. Cardui may be the very medicine you need if suffering with womanly troubles. Take Cardui."

At All Saints Church Tomorrow
The first service will be a celebration of the Holy Communion at 7:00 A. M. Those who anticipate being absent from the other services should attend this service. At 10:30 A. M. the morning prayer will be said and the choir will sing. The choir will sing Sator's anthem "Hear My Cry, Oh Father" and Mr. Talmadge Edwards will be the bass soloist. The evening service, forty minutes in duration only, will be at 7:30 P. M. A feature of this service will be the singing of Senky's ever popular "The Ninety and Nine" by Mrs. H. C. Bugh, soprano soloist. The pastor will deliver a ten minute address. A cordial welcome awaits you and you are reminded that the number and variety of these opportunities for discharging your heavenly duty and service deprives you of all legitimate excuse for spending a Godless Sunday. The least you can offer your Father as a faithful child is your presence once in his house on this day.
To reach the church leave the cars at Fourth and Chillicothe streets and walk two squares West on Fourth to Court. All services conducted on fast time.

Sunday evening 7 p. m. Holy Communion with Dr. J. B. Hawk presiding. This will be our first Communion service together, so let us all be out and start our work with this beautiful service, with love and charity toward all. In the morning the orchestra will give us some more good music and in the evening we hope to have some more music from the men. Last Sunday night the men established a record such as to make the ladies desirous of singing again.
Wednesday evening, 7 p. m. Mill-week prayer service followed by the Fourth Quarterly Conference. Dr. Hawk will preside at this service also. Let us begin this service promptly for there is important business to be transacted.
Thursday night, 7:30 p. m. The Epworth League of Manly Church will give a play, "An Old-Fashioned Mother," in the High School hall. The play consists of three acts. The entire action is in the front "settling" room of Aunt Deborah Underhill, on her farm in Canton, New York, and is said by the Portsmouth people to be exceptionally good. You will laugh as you hear the village choir sing, but you will also weep as you see the sacrificial love of Aunt Deborah. Tickets will be on sale after Saturday noon and you may get them from the boys or at the parsonage.
Friday night, 7 p. m. Regular choir rehearsal.

IS THE BIBLE VULGAR?
BY JOHN COLLINS JACKSON
That charge is sometimes made against it by its enemies. Some even call it obscene. One of them contended with me that a Bible could not be sent by mail on that account. So little is the nature of some of its language, and the character of some of its stories, understood. We would do no special pleading for the Bible. All we desire is that it be judged fairly.
An infidel club in Chicago sends out literature picturing a Sunday school studying the Bible. It selects isolated portions, of this disputed style, and shows boys reading them, giving by numerals, the book, chapter, and verse. A. This is all done to discredit the Bible as a whole. Incidentally it reveals how unwise it is to maintain that the Bible is all alike. That is what its foes would have you believe. It would be farthest from their wishes that people should read the Bible impartially for themselves. That it is possible for them to verify it in this way, makes it necessary to explain how and why the Bible contains such passages.
We ask only that the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth be known about the Bible. We would adopt Augustine's prayer: "Let me not be deceived in Thy Scriptures, neither let me deceive by them." We would remember Job's caution to his accusers, when claiming that his sins made God affect him: "Will ye speak unrighteously for God, and talk deceitfully for him? Will ye show partiality to him? Will ye contend for God?"

Some thirty years ago a notorious agnostic commercialized his great natural oratory and eloquence by lectures, at a dollar a head on "The Mis-takes of Moses." On the platform he would dramatically turn to certain chapters, or portions, of the Bible, and say: "I deny any decent man to read that in public, or in the presence of his wife and children." He was perfectly safe in that challenge. And so would he have been with certain portions of his legal books, or our medical works.
Does that prove that these are obscene, vulgar, or indecent? Everybody knows that that is not so. The moral quality of a thing is in its intention. Any sane person knows that legal and medical works have to be painfully explicit to sensitive ears, not for the purpose of offensiveness, or immorality; but for justice and truth's sake. Now some portions of the Old Testament were the legal and medical jurisprudence of their day, and they also had to use language accordingly. There was not the remotest thought of immorality in it. Besides, these things were written in the early stages of religious evolution: in its undeveloped childhood. As well accuse an infant of indecency, vulgarity, and immorality, because its unrestrained actions in public would not be the etiquette of a grown person.
Further, standards of taste, in what constitutes modesty, advance with culture and human development generally. Go back to the literature of three centuries ago, and you find expressions which are perfectly proper then that would not be admissible at all in polite society today. Shakespeare and Milton illustrate that fact. But no intelligent person would accuse either of obscenity. The human family are found yet in all of these successive stages of development, in modesty and politeness. You need only cross the ocean to find in many European countries customs among the cultured which would shock corresponding ranks in our land.
But notwithstanding the Bible's vindication against the charges of indecency and immorality, common house-hold sense saves us from reading these verses or chapters in public, or in the family circle. Our translators have been as careful as possible to veil certain expressions in euphemistic phraseology, but in other cases this could not be done. Wisely our Bible School lessons avoid those portions least undesirable effects follow from lack of understanding on the part of the young and the uneducated.

I wish to correct a case of garbled printing in the New Boston news of Friday's paper. I sent you an account of the trip of the New Boston D. V. B. S. to Friendship on Thursday afternoon. In it I called attention to the behavior of some young men who seemed to be of that community who by their manners were very offensive. Your account mentioned above made it appear that it was our own young men.
These young men who appeared on the grounds after the picnic party arrived persisted in standing in the baseball diamond and interfering so that one game was given up there it was finished. They took up there it had been dumped from an ice cream pucker and persisted in throwing it at members of the school. They also used a great abundance of profane language. It was those young men who appeared to be from the Friendship community that I meant would be improved in manners by a trip to the county jail. Parties who expect to picnic in the future at Friendship grove should know what sort of "Friendship" awaits them there.

THE SMALLEST BOOK.
Until recently the smallest book was supposed to be a book made in Italy, which is four-tenths of an inch in width, and the next smallest book, a copy of Dante's "Divine Comedy," is something less than one inch wide. It has, however, recently come to light that Arthur K. Clark of Cleveland, O., made a very small volume, which issued in a limited edition of 57 copies. The volume contains the complete text of the "Rubayyat of Omar Khayyam," with the introduction of several pages by N. H. Dole. It is printed in Japanese vellum paper, is bound in full cloth, and its size is exactly three-eighths of an inch by five-sixteenths of an inch. In this little book the text of the Rubayyat is so small that it can only be read by the aid of a magnifying glass.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Mankind is always happier for having been happy. So that if you make men happy now you make them happy 20 years hence by the memory of it.—Sydney Smith.

HERE ARE THE LATEST AVERAGES

CHICAGO, July 16.—Harry Holman, the slugging outfielder of the Detroit Tigers, went on a batting rampage last week and batted himself out of second place in the race for batting honors in the American League and is now in front of Tris Speaker, the Cleveland World's Champion pitcher, who stepped out in front a week ago.

Holman boosted his average to .432, compared with .409 a week ago. Speaker did not do so well with the willow and lost 21 points, his average dropping from .415 last week to .394, the same figure held by Tris Speaker, the Detroit manager, who has not been in the line of the last few weeks because of an injury.

The pair, however, are runners-up to Holman, Tobin of St. Louis being fourth with .375 and Babe Ruth of the Yankees next with .371.

Up to the recent New York-Chicago series Ruth had been stopped by the Chicago pitchers, and in addition to this he had been unable to get a home run in Chicago this year. Little Dick Kerr who set the "home run king" back during the last invasion of the White Sox to New York was on the mound for the Chicago club during the final game in Chicago, and he felt the victim of Ruth's bat. Babe killed two birds with one stone. He not only knocked out his 32nd home run off a Chicago pitcher, but added Chicago to the list of cities in which he has cleared out home runs. Chicago was the last of the American League cities to come in on Ruth's string.

Ruth is far ahead of his last season's record for homers. The averages released today and which include the games of last Wednesday give him a total of 34 circuit drives. He also has scored more runs than any other player in the league. He has crossed the plate for his club 60 times. Although he has cracked out only 106 hits, he leads the league in total bases with 245, which in addition to his string of home runs include 23 doubles and 7 triples.

George Sisler, the St. Louis star, failed to add to his string of stolen bases during the past week, but his 16 thefts continues high.

The averages are those of players who have participated in 50 or more games.

Other leading batters: Severed, St. Louis, .367; Williams, St. Louis, .364; Yench-Detroit, .358; Sisler, St. Louis, .357; E. Collins, Chicago, .354.

George Cutshaw, the initial sack guard of the Pittsburgh Pirates, is making Rogers Hornsby, the St. Louis star step lively to retain the lead among the National League batters, who have participated in 50 or more games, according to the averages released today and which include games of last Wednesday. Cutshaw, who boosted himself up to second place a week ago by steadily hitting has increased his position appreciably. This week the averages show him hitting .382 compared with .365 a week ago. Hornsby suffered a reversal in form and as a result slumped eight points but still retains the lead with an average of .420. C. Williams of the Philadelphia Phillies boosted himself to third place with an average of .364.

George Kelly, the slugger of the Giants, again leads Irish Meusel of Philadelphia for circuit drive honors. Meusel failed to add to his string during the past week while the Giants' first baseman drove out his thirteenth four-ply blow. Frisch of New York and Carey of Pittsburgh are having a merry race for the stolen base honors. Carey is out in front with 23 thefts, while Frisch is one behind him. Frisch however, leads the league as a run getter, having crossed the plate 70 times for his club.

Other leading hitters: Grimes, Chicago, .360; Young, New York, .357; Meusel, Philadelphia, .354; McHenry, St. Louis, .352; Mann, St. Louis, .351; Fournier, St. Louis, .346; Maranville, Pittsburgh, .345.

Reb Russell of Minneapolis is leading the batters of the American Association circuit, according to the averages released today and which include games of last Wednesday. Russell is hitting .387. Artie Butler, the Kansas City second baseman, who left his club and went to Fall River, Mass., and who since has informed his manager Otto Knebe that he will retire from baseball if not traded to some club in the International League has a better mark than Reb, however, as he was hitting .364 before going east. The reason given by Butler for quitting his club was because the climate in Kansas City did not agree with him.

Russell also leads in total bases with 223, acquired 122 hits which include 22 doubles, 14 triples and 17 homers, three of which were made during the past week. Bunting Brief of Kansas City, however, has taken the circuit drive honors away from the Minneapolis slugger, having cracked out three four-ply blows in a single game Wednesday against Columbus and running his string up to 20. Bird of Indianapolis swiped four bases during the past week and is showing the way to the league stealers with 36 thefts.

Other leading hitters for 50 or more games: Kirok, Louisville, .377; Gainer, Milwaukee, .369; Good, Kansas City, .365; Thorpe, Toledo, .362; Brief, Kansas City, .361; Hansen, Milwaukee, .356; Gearing, Milwaukee, .356; Low, Milwaukee, .354; Deird, Indianapolis, .344; Aosta, Louisville, .344.

Ruth Says He Will Get 70

Babe Ruth is still hitting them out. Over in St. Louis yesterday he cracked out his 35th home run.

Last year he lined out 51, and Ruth says he will get 70 or more this season. We shall see, Mr. Ruth.

Features Of Yesterday's Games

NEW YORK, July 16.—Only one American league team—New York—was able to score more than three runs yesterday, while three games were decided by 2 to 2 scores. For the third time this season, all the American league contests were postponed.

A triple play was executed by the Chicago Americans against Washington. With men on first and second bases, First Baseman Sheely caught Erickson's line drive, touched first, doubling O'Rourke, and threw to shortstop Johnson, who lunched second for the third out before Gharrett could regain the base.

Catcher O'Neill, of Cleveland, and Elmerston Gerber, of St. Louis, who had been out of the game because of injuries, played yesterday. The Indians' catcher went in as a pinch hitter.

Wants Boxing Law Repealed

CAMDEN, N. J., July 16.—An organization of churchmen pledged to wage an intensive campaign for repeal of the state boxing law opened headquarters here today. The Rev. William F. Crafts, who, as superintendent of the International Reform Bureau, attempted to have the Dempsey-Brazill fight postponed by injunction, is leader of the movement.

The campaigners plan to follow the same course that resulted in betting at race tracks in Jersey being prohibited some years ago. They announced that legislative candidates would be asked to pledge themselves to vote for repeal of the boxing law.

All public boxing matches would be prohibited in New Jersey under Mr. Crafts' program.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 16.—Minneapolis made it two wins today Friday, hitting Van Gilder for nine hits and seven runs in six innings to win 7 to 3. Babe Ruth batted out his thirty-third home run of the season in the sixth inning, with one man on base. Gerber played his first game at short for the Browns since June 8, when his hand was fractured by a pitched ball at Boston.

Tomorrow afternoon the McDermott nine will play on their own diamond with the Sciotoville Stars as their opponents. This game promises to be one of the fastest staged this year at McDermott as both teams are eager to turn in a victory. Sciotoville won a 5 to 1 game several weeks ago from McDermott at Sciotoville. SCHOOL PITCHER DRAWS ATTENTION

The clever pitching of Willis Praul of the champion San Diego, Cal., high school team has attracted the attention of major league scouts. After pitching great ball all season Praul hurled his team to victory in two straight games of the intercollegiate series with the West Tech high school team of Cleveland, O. for the high school title of the U. S. One victory was a shutout. The scores were 13 to 0 and 7 to 5.

CHICAGO, July 16.—Dick Kerr, White Sox Southpaw, felt today that his "extra inning jinx" had finally left him. Kerr, who was the pitching hero in the Sox's vain attempt to win the 1919 world's series, won yesterday the first extra inning game he has pitched since coming to the American league three years ago. The Sox defeated Washington, 3 to 2, in eleven innings.

Distinctly Northern Bird

The world's migrating champion, according to Prof. Cooke, is the arctic tern. It nests as far north as the arctic. It has been discovered that a bird can find anything stable on which to build its nest. A nest of this bird has been found within seven and one-half degrees of the North pole, and it contained a downy chick surrounded by a wall of new snow that had been scooped out of the nest by one of the parent birds.

Lyra To Get A Playground

Preparatory to the establishment of a permanent playground for Lyra Community, several young women and men with a committee of the Red Cross workers at the Lyra school grounds last evening. All present expressed a desire to establish as complete a recreational program for summer and winter as possible in the very near future. Miss Bertha Bailey was chosen temporary chairman; Messrs. Clifford Andre, Smith Shepherd and George Taylor, were appointed on a committee to investigate where suitable grounds for an outdoor playground could be secured, and at what cost. Another committee was selected to secure the names of those who would pledge themselves to attend every session of a play leaders' course (or else send a substitute) should the Red Cross give such instruction in that neighborhood, so that there would be teachers of volleyball, tennis, ring games, and such activities when the playground could be established. An "enthusiasm" meeting is to be held at the school house, Thursday evening, July 21st, at which there will be music and fun, and the playground committee will take their initial step toward providing finances by selling ice-cream.

Each one present seemed earnest and optimistic, so the outlook for weekly community recreation in Lyra appears very bright for the future.

Inherited Qualities

Science has proved to us beyond a doubt that long before men and women lived in homes and even butts they lived in the branches of trees. The strength found in a new born baby's hands and fingers is an inheritance of prehistoric ages, when children and grown-ups alike spent much of their leisure by day and lived at night in the branches of trees.

AUTO FATALITIES INCREASE

AUTOMOBILE fatalities continue to increase, not alone in this state but all over the country. The statistical bulletin of one of the largest life insurance companies, just out, shows that deaths this year are in excess of those of a year ago. Tables have been compiled which show that the death list is lowest in March, with a sharply ascending curve through June and July, until it reaches a peak at the end of August, continuing almost stationary until the latter part of December, when it begins to fall again. Sundays and holidays take a greater toll than other days.

"There are few, if any, more acute problems before the public health and police authorities in American cities today than that of finding ways and means to save the large number of lives which are being lost to an increasing extent, year after year, through automobile fatalities, observes the statistician of the company, and what he says of the country as a whole applies particularly to this state, where the motor-driven vehicle is fast becoming a menace to public safety.

FIZZLE AND FOLLY

THAT surely was, or shall we say is, since it doesn't know itself whether it is or is not, some legislature that fumbled and fizzled at Columbus through the major part of winter and all the otherwise lovely spring days.

Most people say it didn't do anything; it did, it fizzled and it perpetrated much in the way of folly, got so useless and absurd that Governor Davis had to threaten to dissolve it.

Here are two beautiful examples of its fizzling and foolishness: Unable to devise anything constructive in the way of tax legislation, it provided for submission an amendment to the constitution that would revive the odious and moth-eaten road poll tax, that is every mother's son of us males and may be every mother's daughter too, would have to go out and work a given number of days on the road, or declining to do so to go to jail or else pay so much instead.

Not being satisfied here the gigantic intellects found another hole in that constitution of ours, for which we have only the slightest respect, and proceeded to stop it up by resolving that the people of Ohio, all the great people of the sovereign state, male and female, willing to acknowledge themselves twenty-one years of age, shall by the ballot proceed to rectify that constitution so state officials may be permitted to join the state militia. What counts the cost of a few ten thousand dollars against the inalienable right of our gallant state functionaries to become warriors bold, when the fighting is over?

The name of the president of "the Irish republic," that Lloyd George has besought conference with, is pronounced Dev-al-er. There isn't any doubt he has made it a devil of an era for the British government.

Herb Hoover says things are decidedly on the up grade. Let us hope Herb sees things that nobody else can see.

With irresistible sweep the country is marching on to normalcy. All the mills in the vast Youngstown district, on Tuesday, announced a cut in wages—just as a starter, to be sure.

An artist in New York received word that one of his paintings won a prize just in time to save himself from eviction for unpaid rent. Nice for things like that to happen when a fellow is flat broke.

What America needs is a little less talk about "maintained independence" and a little more progress toward commonsensical normalcy.

The words of President Harding for humanity are fine enough, but it is about time he performed some deeds in keeping with them.

Co-operation with the United States is sought by President Zayas of Cuba, just as though we had not done all the co-operating every time a muss started over there.

One year ago the Republican national convention at Chicago solved all the nation's problems by the application of hot air, as observation of conditions now will show.

A New Idea In Education

By Frederic J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 14.—A man has arisen in the Middle West with a new idea concerning the teaching of the exact science of engineering which is attracting the attention of educators all over the United States and in centers of learning abroad. He has no epoch-making method of supplying brains to dull students, or filling their minds with knowledge that will stick regardless of the students' capacity, but he has worked out a system whereby his school is turning out better graduate engineers.

This man is A. A. Potter, Dean of Engineering at Purdue University, Lafayette, Indiana. That the benefit of his system is appreciated by young men desirous of becoming engineers is shown by the enrollment in the Engineering School at Purdue. In the college year just closed there were 1,845 students, ranking the school third among the institutions of its kind in the United States in point of numbers.

Summed up, what Dean Potter is seeking and getting is to make competent professional men—not just graduates; to keep the student's interest at high pitch; to see that his time is spent where he can best exert it. When a student takes up the engineering course at Purdue, it is soon ascertained whether he knows how to study and memorize effectively. If he does not, it is the first thing he is taught. He is taught that he is not to learn any book, but to master information which that book contains. He is urged to visualize what is set forth in the book, and to concentrate on it until they will be clear and practical to him always.

After he has been at work two or three months in his first year the engineering student has his character inventoried by five of his fellow students and two of his teachers. This record is kept up throughout his course, and affords an excellent estimate of any student almost at a glance. From these seven reports on the student's own estimate of himself his record is made up and kept.

Inventory of Character
These cards cover the student's natural aptitude and mental characteristics; his application; his general attitude, whether self-reliant, opinionated, quarrelsome, aggressive, conciliatory, timid or self-controlled; cooperative ability; courtesy; disposition; cheerful or gloomy or good-natured; efficiency; habits of work, whether punctual, successful, rapid or slow, and the like; his judgment; qualities of leadership; mental caliber; general outlook on life; sense of responsibility; tact.

On the same cards, under the heading of "Moral and Social Characteristics," the two teachers and five student records whether the student be described as an individual, direct and brusque, or irritating, and whether he leaves a good or poor impression; whether his character is yielding, weak, firm, strong, obstinate, or positively moral; whether he is conscientious, tricky, honorable, reliable, or unreliable; whether his manner is trusting, guarded, suspicious, jealous, or popular or not.

The physical characteristics are also recorded. This covers the countenance, energetic or weak; his habit of dress, whether pleasant, serious, open, strong, whether showy, stylish, tasteful, chosen, neat, or careless; whether he has any deformity; his carriage, whether erect and dignified or round-shouldered and slouchy; and his general health, covering his vision, hearing, endurance, vitality, physique and nervous stability.

In addition, this concensus of observation of the student covers his use of English in speaking and writing, and whether his handwriting is business-like, legible, flexible or careless.

From the data collected, Dean Potter is able to advise the student as to his future course, encouraging him if he is on the right road, or telling him if his path is badly chosen. If a student is without any faculty of leadership or inventive ideas, who is prone to accept everything as he finds it without any suggestion of improvement, he is believed to have chosen the wrong profession as his life work. Engineering in practically every branch demands constant inventive ability and constructive thinking, and the student who is without these qualities is believed to have chosen the wrong profession as his life work. Follow the Natural Bent
The student who is found to be naturally gifted and fitted for the profession of engineering requires only the usual course, and may be depended upon to make good. For others whose strength and ability are not so well defined, Dean Potter holds that it is the duty of these young men and women to follow the natural bent of their own characters, or natural ability for the work they think they want to undertake.

Bernard Shaw's Latest

Unstated admission is general for men who "can" and "do," who say "I will" and then make their words a deed—who put things over, have confidence in themselves, and back their assertions and pledges with industry and achievement.

But a good opinion of himself, too oft or too openly expressed, does not win admiration always. After the fact a "real, vivid, rich" carries a thrill. But those who indulge in unadorned vanity are likely to encounter mortification. Boasts fall on stony ground as a rule.

Bernard Shaw, who is no shrinking violet of modesty, has contributed many delicious tidbits of his individuality and disregard for conventional restraint, not the least of which appear in the preface of his new play, "Back to Methuselah," where he says:

"I am doing the best I can at my age. My powers are waning; but so much the better for those who found me unutterably brilliant in my prime."

A man who can get that sort of a thing across on a foundation of real accomplishment delights even his enemies, but he must know his audience to be sure of his applause. The man who presumes and whose opinion of himself is too good, who "reckons up" the several devils' names that are in his "back," becomes what Hogarth called Glendower—"as tedious as a third horse, a railing wife; worse than a smoky house."

On The Back Porch

At least one of President Wilson's historic papers—his war message to Congress—was not originally written on a typewriter, but with a pencil. One of his cabinet members tells us how the President spent days and nights thinking over the subject, anxious to write, but without the inspiration that brings the words and phrases desired. Finally he awakened one night at two o'clock with his brain ready for the task. Jotting down his "leads" by his bedside, lest they elude him later, he repaired to the back porch of the White House with paper and pencil after slipping a bathrobe over his night dress.

There an hour later Mrs. Wilson found him immersed in his work. She found him a little hungry, and with wifely devotion got him a lull of milk and crackers. Under these circumstances the message was written.

All writers will appreciate this story. Newspaper men who write every day are perhaps best trained to turn out matter regardless of conditions, but with all their powers of concentration there come times when the brain refuses to respond to the will, and does not uncover its resources of knowledge and gifts of expression. Then they are in the doldrums as Mr. Wilson was for days.

President Lincoln is said to have written his immortal address at Gettysburg while going on a train to the battlefield, using a pencil and the back of an envelope for recording his thoughts as the car lurched and jolted along the way. All professional writers have done good work under unusual conditions. So do presidents at times, it seems.

The Bonus For Soldiers

It can well await better days provided immediate attention is given disabled fighting men. A bonus of $500 to every man and woman who was in the service now, would be pleasant, but we dare say that the rehabilitation of the country's industries and the restoration of business prosperity in the next year, will in the long run be worth twenty times as much to our gallant boys.

Five hundred dollars is a small amount at best. Good times is an incalculably better thing for both the soldiers and the country at large at the present time. The obligation to the men who were in uniform is continuous. It will be met in due time, generously. But should the country not be set right first?

Causes of Crime

Foodstuffs mentions law enforcement of law, ease of escape and pardon, laxity in policing, and disregard for law, as potent causes of crime. Joyce, another expert, attributes much crime to the demoralization of war, great profits, extravagance following high wages, and unseemly display of wealth in public.

Our own notion is that the failure adequately to punish crime, is at the root of practically every crime not committed in hot blood.

Our idea of no place to be in is a crowd at a firing line, with air men showing off overhead.

New-York-Day-By-Day

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 15.—It was midnight at Herald Square. The great triangular office that once hummed with life is dark. Night birds of the Tenderloin creep to their roosts along the Broadway side. Street hawkers, old newspaper vendors, professional beggars and the jobless huddled together like so many sparrows.

A white haired old man in a motting coat, despite the heat, mumbled lines from Hamlet. An actor "At Liberty"—perhaps for all time. "What the bleedin' ell is the old bloke ravin' at?" queried a squat man with a Cockney accent. A policeman strolled by and the hum of conversation in front of a cafeteria across the street.

One of the night birds strolled over to him and exclaimed: "Some guy hasn't a fit." Soon heads were being pillowed on old newspapers and ragged coats. Leaning against one of the great marble pillars was a service man with crutches—a trouser leg and a coat sleeve empty.

He stared out into the night, expressionless. Once a crutch clattered out of his grasp and down the steps. Some one picked it up and handed it up to him. No word of thanks followed. He continued staring out into the night. A street flusterer rumbled by, washing the asphalt to a shiny green. It cooled the atmosphere and one sleeper awakened to query: "Who does that?"

From a side street came a young laborer in a rumpled corduroy. A red bandana served as a shirt. He walked unsteadily and soon another figure joined him—a tired woman in a faded wrapper. They labored in a foreign tongue. He pushed her away. "G'wan home with the old woman!" some one yelled, but he neither understood nor heeded. And when she left he sat along the curb and was soon snoring. He had ridden this raw—this motley collection of a crushing city's submerged. With the first rumble of the milk wagons they would be up and off to some other hide-away. Daylight reveals their wretchedness. They are children of the darkness—without hope, ambition or trust. As I walked northward a group of disinclined men were leaving a private club to enter their purring bedrooms. They were sleek, well fed aristocrats, vibrant with the heady wine of a carefree life. And as I continued my walk home, I could not help but think of that motley group of men staring expressionless out into the night.

Thackeray's Secret

Thackeray defied all rules. His wonderful eye saw everything and everybody. He lived and enjoyed life with an absolutely unimpaired and childlike zest, and his brave, simple, tender spirit endured to the end. Where other men are connoisseurs of fine flavors and delicate nuances, Thackeray was a connoisseur of the broadest and biggest things of life—its pathos, its absurdity, its courage, its loyalty.

Chime and Chimes

It is not "positively incorrect" to use the word chimes. "We have heard the chimes at midnight," Master Shallow, exclaimed Falstaff, and the "Chimes of Bruges" is an expression that has been used "correctly" enough, too, a thousand times.

Praise.
Praise may puff up a shallow nature, but it always brings something of humanity to a deep one. Love and commendation are sweet, but just because they are worth so much the true and earnest spirit is touched with a sense of its own unworthiness as it receives them, a longing to be better fitted for the trust reposed in it. It is not the flash of scorn, but the light of love that reveals us to ourselves and stirs us to our best effort.

On Your Laundry Save Money
You save money when you save labor. This is true whether you do your own or have it done. You should therefore have expert advice on the arrangement of your work.

You save money if you save your clothes from fading, from shrinking. Be sure to use the right kind of soap, the right kind of dye, the proper washing powder.

You should know how to use a little soda when you put your clothes in a wash, and a little turpentine when they are yellow.

The Department of Agriculture has made an exhaustive study of all these problems of the laundry. It has prepared a booklet that is now ready for free distribution. Our Washington Information Bureau will write a copy for you if you send in your name and address with two cents in stamps for return postage.

Two in One
"Sages tell us that the best way to get the most out of life is to fall in love with a great problem or a beautiful woman."
"Why not choose the latter and get both?"—Amberst Lord Jeff.

Sad Associations
"I can't play billiards in the winter time at all."
M. and Cheyenne, Wyo., are the ranking in the order given.

"Why not?"
"Every time I got to knocking those three balls around it reminds me of my overcoat."—Gargole (Michigan).

The Cynical Composer
The home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown was the scene of a beautiful wedding last evening when their youngest daughter Margaret was joined in holy wedlock to Mr. David Preston, quoted from a Western paper by the Boston Transcript.

The Best Car
Two enthusiastic motorists were passing an automobile showroom one day when they stopped to look at the display.
"I'd buy a car of that make," said the one, "if I knew it was a good hill climber."
"Why don't you get one like mine?" returned his friend. "It can climb trees."
